An epic prequel to the smash-hit graphic novel TMNT: The Last Ronin, where readers discovered who the Last Ronin was, Lost Years shows the thrilling journey of how he came to be.

In the smash-hit miniseries The Last Ronin, readers witnessed the final gut-wrenching days of the Heroes in a Half-Shell. For Michelangelo in particular, the march to his heartbreaking last battle was long and dangerous, taking him from New York City to Japan, across Asia and Europe, and then back home again to administer final justice against those guilty of killing his family.

But what happened during those fateful years when he had only the need for vengeance and Master Splinter’s journal to guide him? What battles did he fight? What hard lessons did he learn? The time has come to find out as original miniseries writers Kevin Eastman and Tom Waltz join artist Ben Bishop to reveal what adventures the Last Ronin experienced during his vengeful journey. And in the present, a new master, Casey Marie Jones, prepares her young terrapin students to be the next generation of Teenage Mutant Ninja Turtles!

Then the Vangol arrive.

Ruthless, ancient, and unstoppable, these invaders from across the sea threaten to erase both civilizations from existence. With extinction looming, former foes must forge an uneasy alliance or be wiped from history.

But in the uneasy space between war councils and front lines, something unexpected takes root: connection. Trust. Love. And the possibility that the future of the world may depend not just on swords and strategy, but on the courage to see each other as more than enemies.

This stunning oversized hardcover collects all 12 issues of the critically acclaimed saga in one breathtaking volume, an epic of war, diplomacy, and defiant hope that redefines high fantasy for a new generation.

Frankie Stein, Draculaura, Clawdeen Wolf, Cleo de Nile, and Lagoona Blue are in desperate need of a defrightful weekend getaway. And what's more frightening than a haunted house? Except the cabin they found on the normie version of ScareBnB is...toads boring. No cobwebs, no rusty saw blades, just a tacky singing plastic fish. The ghouls are scary underwhelmed—until they discover a classically creepy basement and accidentally unlock an ancient horror, awakening the evil titan Ekhidna and someone, or somehouse, else.

They will have to piece together a plan (and Frankie!), navigate a house with a shifting floor plan, and fight a pack of monsterfied animals to survive until the morning. Ekhidna is putting everyone in fearious danger, but together, the ghouls can face anything! Except maybe the ScareBnB cleaning fee they're about to receive...oops!

Collects Monster High: House Haunters issues #1-5.

ELISE HATED HER NEW ROOM. The cracked walls, the lumpy floor, nothing felt right.

"You'll get used to it," said her mother, cheerfully holding her teenage daughter's blankets. Elsie noticed a small, very spider crawling across her desk. She smushed it under her fist and sighed loudly. "Not likely."

The next day after school finished, was equally awful. Elsie collapsed into her too lumpy bed, then noticed a pair of spiders entering on the wall, inches above her pillow.

"I've... I'm... I see!" said Elsie as she slammed her palm flat against them. But restricting her hand, she saw no spiders remain. "Huh."

The next day, Elsie felt horrible. Not just about moving, or about school, but deep in her stomach, as though her internal organs were strangling one another.

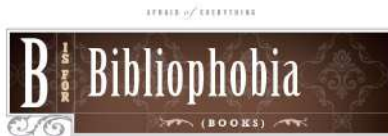

Exactly after drinking her health (filled) turkey and mashed potato, her health decided to return, spread across the table as a messy green goop. As Elsie died of embarrassment (and healthily), she noticed a tiny, eight-legged goop of green seeping out of the mess.

After a week of daily vomiting, peeing, shits, and unpleasant nausea, her mother took Elsie to the hospital. The doctor smiled reassuringly (like someone's grandma) as he finished her X-ray results. But when he returned, his face looked pale and worried.

Deep inside Elsie's stomach, Nisa was hating her new room. The really walls, the waxy floor... nothing felt right.

"You'll get used to it," said her mother, cheerfully spinning a web-like her teenage daughter.

Nisa sighed loudly. "Not likely."

THIRTY MINUTES PAST CLOSING, the lights shut off. It wasn't unusual for Jess to be caught at the library after hours. His Saturday routine was to grab a pile of books, huddle under a desk, and devour himself in strokes until she was kicked out.

Jess stumbled through a dark maze of bookshelves toward the glowing EXIT sign, like heaped the door wasn't locked. It was. As she slumped against the door, deciding her next move, she noticed an open bookcase on the floor. Both of its visible pages were blank except for one line: "You picked up the book."

She flipped the book over. Strange symbols were etched into its leather cover, but no words. She flipped it back over and saw a new line added: "You walked down the hall."

As she debated doing this, a light above her came on, less than the door again (so both) then began down the hall. The lights flickered on and off as she passed below them. She checked the book. "You opened the door."

She looked up just in time to avoid bumping into an emergency exit. She opened the door to reveal a dark, winding staircase leading downwards. She checked the book again. "You went down."

The metal staircase was slippery and deteriorating. Jess checked the book but it was too dark to read. She leapt a few feet deep below her and spotted a faint red glow, which turned out to be a lamp at the bottom of the stairwell. She held the book up in the deep red light. "You went through the gate."

A heavy curtain gate stood before her. She stepped through it. "You closed the gate." She did. "You took the key." She pulled an iron key from the gate, inadvertently locking it. She checked the book again. "You opened the key through the gate."

She pivoted, unsure of what to do. Part of her wanted to rush back up the main, break a window and get out of there but another part of her needed to finish the story.

The novel quiet and indecisive for a long time. "WELL!" a voice finally growled from the darkness. "HOW DOES IT END?"

Jess screamed, dropping the book. The light went out.

What? How does it end?

JUST PAST MIDNIGHT (well past bedtime) something woke up Todd. Something scurried his window as it shuffled through the sand. Something pale and horrific that was crawling past his door. And then Todd with a mix of ruckus and alarm.

Todd rushed to Mom and Dad's room seeking refuge in their bed. But found a pair of skeletons resting there instead. The skeletons did all his parents' skin like their clothes. And left their books scattered on the mattress as they rose.

Todd hid behind a couch and watched them make their pale retreat. Then followed them covertly to the graveyard down the street. And there he saw a hundred bony figures congregating.

And then and there beneath the moon until the hour was late. Then as the ghoulish night dissolved between the morning's rays, the skeletons shook hands, gave hugs, and shuffled one of the graves. Where they would sleep peacefully with their buried brethren.

To give each another corpse a chance to rise and live again. Todd turned to leave, excited to reveal what he'd seen. But then his skin peeled from his bones and Todd began to scream. His own voice quickly muffled as his skull popped through his face.

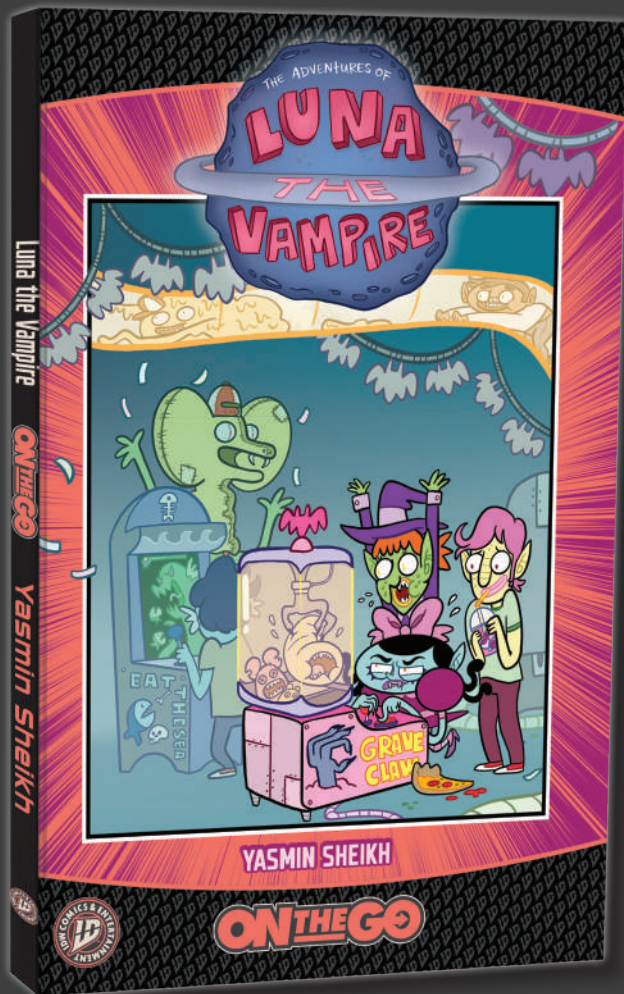

And asked, "Hey, where's the party? Am I late? Is this the place?"
