TO SAVE HIM . . . THEY HAD TO DAMN HIM!
In the bloodstained tradition of AFTERLIFE WITH ARCHIE, something wicked this way comes to Riverdale in an infernal new ongoing series from multiple Eisner Award winner Patrick Horvath (Beneath the Trees Where Nobody Sees) and Russ Manning Award winner Tyler Crook (Out of Alcatraz, Harrow County)!

They say that every small town has a secret. Well, in the case of Riverdale, it's one heck of a humdinger: An ancient order of cultists has infiltrated its townspeople, bent on using human sacrifice to usher a demon lord into our mortal plane. And they've finally identified the final target they need to bring a century's worth of planning to fruition: hometown football champion and all-around good guy Archie Andrews. But this secret cabal never dreamed that actual witches walk Riverdale's streets . . . and when cult and coven clash in the final stages of Archie's secret-ritual sacrifice, the consequences will be cosmic . . . and young Archie Andrews will find himself damned to something far worse than Hell's inner circle.

Unstuck from time and space. Bound to a terrible curse. Late for school. Things are about to go from bad to downright diabolical as Horvath and Crook unleash the most malevolently merciless Archie Comics tale ever told . . . and, truly, you'll never, ever expect what happens next.

From Hugo Award-nominated writer Corinna Bechko (EC's Blood Type) and Eisner Award-nominated artist Kano (Daredevil), the dazzling return of everyone's favorite mischievous witch-in-training is about to turn Greendale upside down!

Between staying on top of schoolwork during the day and figuring out this whole magic thing by night, Sabrina's having a hard time keeping her head above water. When her aunts suggest a journal might help make her magic a little more comprehensible, she jumps at the opportunity to master at least one aspect of the dark arts. But it turns out just because you're a witch doesn't mean you have spell-check . . . and the journal that Sabrina has just created might accidentally be much, much more powerful than she ever intended . . .

ORIGINAL GRAPHIC NOVEL			IN STORES NOVEMBER 11

WRITER MICHELE MONTELEONE ARTIST/COVER FREDDIE TANTO

This dark exploration of identity and responsibility in the face of evil is an engrossing journey for fans of dark fantasy! Originally published in Italy, this debut English edition features a translation by the original writer, Michele Monteleone, and a new, exclusive illustration by artist Freddie Tanto.

Teenage orphan Leah lives in a small village a few miles away from the deadly swamp. According to local legend, in ancient times the swamp was a lake with an imposing castle at the center, until someone awoke something behind those walls that needed to be kept asleep, and the castle collapsed as the swamp took over. Now people live precariously on its borders, as the swamp spawns “things” that the Church calls Demons.

When her village's greatest hero is killed fighting off one of these monsters, leaving the shriveled, weak remnant of its evil contained in a lantern, Leah is chosen to carry the demon to the center of the swamp and cast it into the black pit. But as she journeys she'll encounter greater threats than that held tightly in her hand, and the demon raises questions about why Leah would risk her life for the village that would send her on this perilous task in the first place.

What will Leah find in the ruins of the collapsed castle and the black pit? How far do we have to travel to know ourselves?

ARTIST/COVER LUDOVIC "GRUN" DUBOIS

Welcome to a future, where the true natures of mankind prove to be inescapable no matter how far you travel in this explosive sci-fi prison drama by brilliant creators Sylvain Runberg (Warship Jolly Roger) and Grun (Space Relic Hunters). Who is really in control? And can anyone truly claim a planet on the verge of forced evolution?

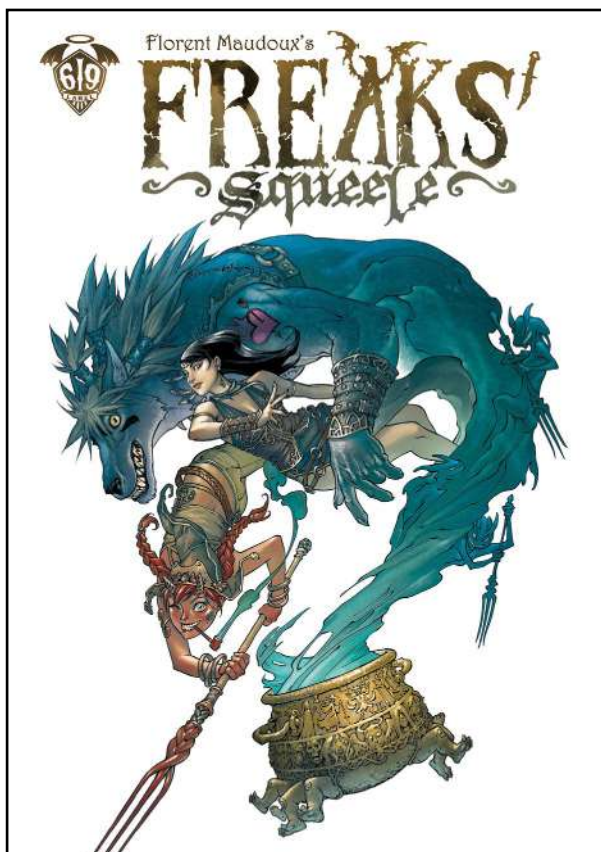

In 2132, life on Earth has reached the limits of sustainability. Colonizing Mars has become our only option, and the construction of such a significant enterprise has required massive resources and manpower. The most cost-efficient solution to this requirement is conscripted labor provided by convicted felons—early access to humanity's future homeworld, but in exchange for the back-breaking and perilous work of constructing the damn thing. Officer Jasmine Stanford is sent to Mars and sentenced to conscripted labor for a wrongful death committed on her watch. With little defense against the corruption on Earth, she has no idea what sort of nightmare awaits her on the red planet . . .

This complete edition features the complete story, as well as a 48-page production sketchbook by artist Grun drafted as a prisoner diary.

WRITER/ARTIST/COVER FLORENT MAUDOUX

The penultimate volume of Florent Maudoux's cult hit Freaks' Squeele series plunges the heroes into chaos as the gates to the underworld are left open, unleashing demons and ghosts across the city. With the living sword, Claidheamor, trapped below, Professor Funerals leads a rescue team through the seven infernal levels, while Dean Scipio searches for Shadow Wolf and Xiong Mao, who are lost in a romantic outing and suffering from memory loss. Meanwhile, Chance takes matters into her own hands, descending into hell in an uneasy alliance with her rival Ange. As the dean of the Saint-Angelus Academy plots to blame the FEAH Academy for the outbreak, the students must battle monsters, confront personal demons, and uncover hidden truths about their pasts. It's a wild, emotionally charged volume that mixes mythic descent, romantic tension, and campus warfare in true Freaks' Squeele fashion.
